RICE DEVELOPMENT

What is CARD?

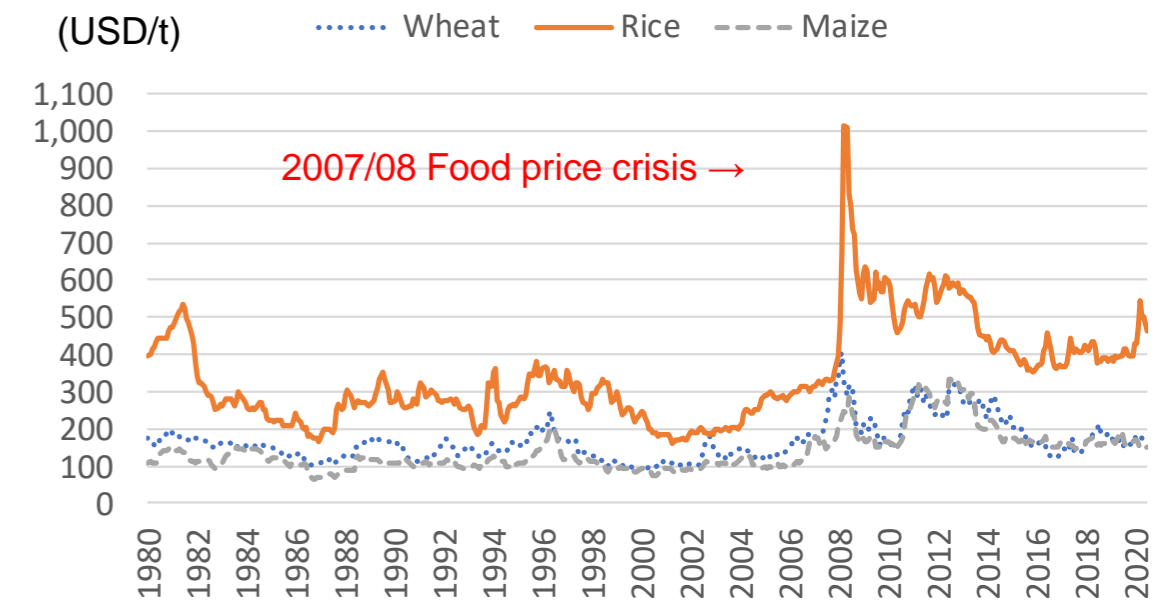

- The gap between production and consumption started widening in the late 90s.
- was established in 2008 by AGRA, JICA and NEPAD
- is a consultative group of bilateral and multilateral donors and African and international organizations/institutions
- aimed at doubling rice production in SSA by 2018
- provided various kinds of support, but not financial one
- entered its 2nd Phase in 2019

Rice: 5 percent broken milled white rice, Thailand nominal price quote
Maize: U.S. No.2 Yellow, FOB Gulf of Mexico, U.S. price

Achievement in Phase 1 (2008-2018)

- 314 rice-related projects were formed/implemented in the 23 CARD member countries in Phase 1, the total investment of which amounts to USD 10.8 bn.
- Out of 314, 218 projects are by the CARD SC members and the governments self financing, to the tune of USD 8.5 bn.
- 172 projects (55% of total) make reference to the NRDS in their project documents.

East Africa Rice Conference

organized by IRRI, AfricaRice, JICA, APRA, CARD

19-20 May 2021

- ❑ EARC served as a platform for accomplishing the ambitious plan of strengthening domestic rice production by bringing together key players in the sector and initiating substantive discussions on the opportunities and challenges that it faces.
- ❑ As rice becomes a strategic commodity in Africa, many countries have embarked on various programs that, along with continental initiatives, aspire to chart a course of action for moving the regional rice sector forward.
- ❑ Attended by more than 400 people

Independent Dialogue to UNFSS

(towards sustainable Rice based food systems in Africa)

29 July 2021

- ❑ This Dialogue aims to bring together a range of stakeholders across the food system to respond to the challenge of building sustainable value chains for the African rice sector. Specifically, the dialogue aims to address these three questions:
 - 1) How has the African rice sector responded to multiple regional and global crises
 - 2) What do policymakers do in response to these crises and to the surging increase in imports?
 - 3) How can we shift stakeholder perspectives towards integrating nutrition and health in agricultural activities and research
- ❑ Attended by about 120 people

ABSTRACT

Demand for rice consumption in Africa has outstripped the current local production capacities. As a result, African markets have become heavily dependent on importation, especially from Asia. During the COVID-19 pandemic, rice production in both Asia and Africa is likely to be reduced. It is also likely that the major Asian rice exporting countries will resort to stockpiling of their local production, and restrict volumes of (or ban) rice exportation. Such measures could affect demand-supply dynamics and trigger a price crisis in African rice markets. Based on the lessons learnt from the Ebola and Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) epidemics and the 2007–08 food price crisis, African nations need to moderate the impact of such a crisis through appropriate policy actions.
